In gist, the Graduate Attributes for Sub-degree, Undergraduate, Taught Postgraduate, Professional Doctorate and Research Postgraduate students consist of the following three domains (i.e. in short "PEER & I"):

The descriptors under these three domains are different for the three groups of students in order to reflect the respective level of Graduate Attributes.

The seven GILOs are:

- 3. Creative Thinking Skills
- 4a. Oral Communication Skills
- 4b. Written Communication Skills

- 6. Ethical Decision Making
- 7. Global Perspectives

1. Course Synopsis

This course offers an overview of the field of global political economy (GPE) and provides a disciplinary foundation for students to engage in further inquiries in global studies. It introduces the historical context of contemporary international political economy and the different theoretical approaches and perspectives of GPE before turning to the key issue areas, including trade, production, investment, finance, development, and resources. It transcends the divide between international and domestic levels of analysis, and analyses the roles of actors like interest groups, multinational corporations, governments, and international institutions in the evolutions of global/regional trade regimes, production and investment networks, and development institutions. It also explores the relationships between state power and globalization and possible future developments.

2. Course Intended Learning Outcomes (CILO_s)

Upon completion of this course, students will be able to:

- CILO₁ analyze issues of international political economy from different theoretical perspectives;
- CILO₂ understand the interplays between the international and domestic political economic forces in different issue areas (such as trade, development and resources);
- CILO₃ assess the aims and performance of key global trade and financial institutions;
- CILO₄ conceptualize various aspects of globalization and their social, economic and environmental implications.
