Dr. Ng is an associate professor in the Department of Educational Policy and Administration. He has joined the teacher training career since 1987. He received his PhD in Parental involvement in School Education from Exeter University in 2002. He is presently the Director of the Aspiring Principals' Training Programmes and the Associate Director of the Asia Pacific Centre of Leadership and Change in the Institute. He has taken charge of and organized many commissioned training programmes for principals from Hong Kong, the Chinese Mainland and overseas countries. Dr. Ng has published more than 20 articles in international journals and over 20 book chapters and two books. He has been invited by several international journals as reviewer and is the editorial board member of the international journal of 'Teacher Development'. He was the guest editor of a special issue in the International Journal of Educational Reform. Due to his interest in educational policies, he has always been invited by the media for interviews and writing education commentaries in newspapers in Hong Kong.
