Instructional Leadership is the work of school leaders to improve teaching and learning outcomes

Terry QUONG

This paper provides a case study of the work of one school principal who improves teaching and learning through the implementation of a process called '5 Small Steps'. An action learning approach is used in this case study of instructional leadership, in order to describe what instructional leadership 'looks like' in one school. This case study also demonstrates evidence based practice in schools.
