Leadership and Learning in Asia Pacific: Challenges for Research and Practice

Dr. James KO

The Hong Kong Institute of Education, Hong Kong

Email: yojamesko@gmail.com

Dr. James Ko is Assistant Professor of Department of Education Policy and Leadership, Hong Kong Institute of Education. Before his doctoral study, he had taught English for fourteen years at a local secondary school, where he also led the Discipline Team and the Counseling and Guidance Team and co-founded the junior form Integrated Humanities unit. He had extensive training in linguistics, psychology and education, with degrees from Canada, Hong Kong, and the U.K. Prior joining the Department, he was working on two RGC-funded research projects at The Joseph Lau Luen Hung Charitable Trust Asia Pacific Centre for Leadership and Change. He has worked for various large scale research projects funded by the RGC in Hong Kong and by the ESRC and DSCF in the UK. He does mixed-method research and his research interest is now focusing on issues related to educational effectiveness and its assessment and improvement.
