Nguyen Kim Ha is currently with the University of Economics and Finance, HCMC (UEF). She holds a Master's degree in Applied Linguistics from Curtin University, Australia and is pursuing studies in Strategic Business Management and Education Management. She has worked in areas including education theory, curriculum development and pedagogy in English training. As a consultant, she has engaged in change and reform implementation at SaigonTech, Vietnam, an affiliate of Houston Community College, USA. Here, she was part of a team that developed and implemented an 'English only' environment for language training.

Her research interests include teaching methodologies, soft skills and targeting education to economic needs.

She is currently Deputy Dean of Enterprise Relations at UEF, where she is helping students develop skills to fit into commercial enterprises and is guiding internships and career search. Analyzing the requirements from the enterprises, she provides consultancy in initiatives, and innovation at UEF.

She has also worked as a coordinator at IRED- Institute for Research and Education Development.
