Dr Dora Ho is currently an Associate Professor and Associate Head in the Department of Early Childhood Education at the Education University of Hong Kong. Her research interests include school leadership and management, education policy, and teacher professional development. The role and practice of leadership for school development and improvement is the main theme of many of Dr. Ho's research studies. She has written extensively on issues of educational leadership, education policy, teacher development, and curriculum change. Her publications have led the professional community to rethink the role of leadership in the process of change at school level.
