Hui-Ling Wendy Pan has been Professor of Graduate Institute of Educational Policy and Leadership at Tamkang University since 2011. She held office as the institute's director during 2014-15. Because of her valuable experiences in education, she is nominated as Executive Director of the Center for Learning and Teaching at Tamkang University since August, 2015. She is former Professor and Director of Graduate Institute of Educational Policy and Administration at National Taiwan Normal University, as well as the Director of the Centre for Educational Research of the university. In addition to her positions in the academia, Professor Pan has served on ad hoc committees of Taiwan's Ministry of Education for years. Her rich experiences in education-related fields allow her to combine research with first-hand practice. She is a former editor of Bulletin of Educational Research, the most prestigious education journal in Taiwan, and the president of two educational associations in Taiwan: School Administration Research Association, R.O.C., and Taiwan Association for Local Educational Development. Professor Pan serves on the board of directors for more than ten associations.

Professor Pan's publications reflect her bountiful experiences in research, teaching, and practice. She has authored and edited dozens of books and a good many of conference papers, articles, and book chapters on educational leadership, school improvement, and educational evaluation. She has launched more than a hundred research programs in the last two decades. Her most recent project is Learning Community under Leadership for Learning, funded by Ministry of Education, Taiwan. The project aims to transform school culture with a new approach, which integrates leadership for learning with learning communities.
