Shanghai Yan'an Middle School

Shanghai Yan An Middle School is a high-quality public junior high school located in Changning District, Shanghai. Over the years, the school has adhered to the tradition of running the school in a down-to-earth manner and devoting herself to educating students. It has inherited the school motto of "self-confidence and self-improvement", closely focused on the theme of Changning's comprehensive education reform of "energetic education, achieving dreams". The school has been continuously developing the school characteristics of "mathematics expertise, scientific and technological excellence, humanistic harmony, and harmonious development", and implementing the school philosophy of "allowing every student's potential to be fully developed". It is committed to cultivating students who are well-rounded individuals with strong comprehensive abilities. The school emphasizes morality, intelligence, physical health, aesthetics, and labor skills as its main teaching objectives, aiming to cultivate students who possess both traditional Chinese virtues and modern civilized qualities.

In recent years, the school has won honorary titles such as "The Advanced School in National Education System", "The Experimental School for Science Education by the Ministry of Education, China".
