

Research Assistant I (Ref: 2500899)
The Joseph Lau Luen Hung Charitable Trust
Asia Pacific Centre for Leadership and Change

[Appointment Period: 6 months]

We are seeking a high-caliber candidate to join our research team. The appointee will provide essential research support and perform academic duties as assigned by the Principal Investigator, with an appointment period of six months.

The role involves conducting literature reviews, assisting in research design, and managing data collection and analysis. A key component will include supporting intervention studies and applying statistical software (e.g., R, SPSS, Python) for data processing. Familiarity with AI and educational technology research will be advantageous. Additional responsibilities include preparing research outputs such as reports and presentations.

Applicants should possess at least a Bachelor's degree (Master's preferred), with prior research experience, particularly in intervention studies, considered a strong asset. Technical proficiency in statistical tools and knowledge of AI applications in education will be prioritized. Strong communication skills in English and Chinese, organizational competence, and the ability to work both independently and collaboratively are essential. Immediate availability is preferred.
