

Research Assistant I (Ref: 2501292)

Department of Psychology

Project Title: Sustained Attention: Psychological Construct, Neural Mechanisms & Clinical Application
[Appointment Period: 4 months]

We are seeking a Research Assistant for a 4-month appointment to work on the project "Sustained Attention: Psychological Construct, Neural Mechanisms & Clinical Application." This innovative research project will utilise the EEG-based Brain-Computer Interface paradigm to investigate the relationship between attention states and cognitive performance. The successful candidate will conduct literature reviews, develop cognitive tasks, and create EEG-based brain state classifiers. Additional responsibilities include data collection, management, analysis, manuscript writing, and report preparation.

Applicants should possess a Bachelor's degree in Psychology, Cognitive Science, Computer Science, or a related discipline. Essential requirements include written and spoken English, Chinese, and Cantonese proficiency. The ideal candidate should demonstrate a strong interest in human behaviour, brain science and machine learning and have programming skills in MATLAB or Python. We are looking for someone self-motivated, responsible, and capable of working independently and as part of a team. Knowledge of statistical analysis using R and SPSS would be an advantage but is optional.

For further enquiries about the post, please contact Dr Clive Wong at clivewong@eduhk.hk.

Salary will be commensurate with qualifications and experience. Fringe benefits include leave and outpatient medical benefits.

The University only accepts and considers applications submitted online for this post. Applicants should complete the online application form and upload a full CV on or before 25 December 2025. Applications which are incomplete or without the required documents may not be considered. Personal data provided by applicants will be used for recruitment and other employment-related purposes.
