Project Title: Exploring Ethical AI Integration and Student Agency in Language Assessment

[Appointment Period: 6 months]

The Department of English Language Education at The Education University of Hong Kong invites applications for a Post-doctoral Fellow position for a research project investigating the integration of Generative Artificial Intelligence (GenAI) in language assessment and multilingual education. The project examines how GenAI-mediated feedback and assessment practices can support student agency, self-regulation, and language learning while addressing important ethical considerations in educational contexts.

Key Responsibilities

- Conducting literature reviews and preparing research reports;
- Assisting with data organization, storage, and research documentation;
- Supporting participant recruitment and liaison with schools;
- Collecting and managing qualitative and quantitative research data;
- Conducting classroom observations and interviews;
- Organizing, transcribing, coding, and analyzing research data;
- Assisting in the development of GenAI-mediated assessment materials and resources;
- Supporting conference presentations, publications, and knowledge mobilization activities; and
- Performing other research-related duties as assigned.

Applicants should possess a PhD in Applied Linguistics, TESOL, English Language Education, Education, Educational Technology, Psychology, or a related discipline. They should have strong academic writing and communication skills in English, interest in language assessment, AI in education, multilingual education, or educational technology, evidence of independence, careful data stewardship, collaborative working and the ability to deliver reliable research infrastructure and analyses to agreed timelines and experience with qualitative and/or quantitative research methods.
