Renowned Writer of Children Literature Mr Chu Pu Sun (A Nong)

Famous by his pen name A Nong, the well-known children's author is less well known by his real name, Chu Pu Sun. Mr Chu graduated in 1954 from Grantham Training College. He is a veteran teacher with 39 years experience. He had taught in both primary and secondary schools. In 1984, Mr Chu took up the challenge of joining a school admitting children with serious emotional problems, where he served for nine years. In the meantime, he studied Special Education at Sir Robert Black College of Education. Mr Chu was a member of the Executive Committee and Senate of the Hong Kong Professional Teachers' Union.

Mr Chu is a prolific writer, well-loved and admired by young people. His passion for education is apparent from the many books he has authored. He is widely acclaimed in the world of children's literature. He has published more than 100 books, winning many awards, including "Bing Xin Children Literature Award 2004" (winning book: "Tenderness in My Heart"), "Third Hong Kong Biennial Children Literature Award" (winning book: "Story-telling by A Nong"), "Hong Kong Education City Top Ten Good Books 2004" (Top Choice) and "My Favourite Writer Award" (winning book: "Diary of the Fair Maiden"). Mr Chu was also named five times as their best loved author by secondary school students.

While enjoying his life in retirement in Canada, Mr Chu is still active creatively. He continues to meet young people, listening to their stories and sharing with them his experiences of life. His passion for education still motivates him to keep on writing for his readers.
