ELE Workshop

Introduction to Google Classroom for Course tutors and FE supervisors

Synopsis:

Google Classroom is a platform that supports the management of coursework and reduces communication friction with students and classmates. This seminar will introduce participants to the features of Google Classroom and possible applications for use in EdUHK courses and FE Supervision. For those who are new to Google Suite, it will also include a tutorial on how to create a Google Classroom. This seminar is open to both students and staff who are interested and is meant to be an introduction to the platform.

Speaker:

Sterling Wu is a Senior Lecturer at EdUHK, specialising in helping teachers to integrate technology into their English teaching. Sterling is highly sought after by his colleagues for solutions regarding all things that “connect to the Internet” and occasionally for issues relating primary English pedagogy. He’s also an avid collector and user of technology and can probably charge any device you happen to have on your person. Sterling’s interests are in computer-mediated language teaching, pedagogy and teacher professional learning. He is also very passionate about teaching and tries to maximise a-ha! moments for his students in all of his teaching.
