To whom it may concern

I am writing this letter for [Redacted] who is currently an undergraduate student in the Bachelor of Social Sciences (Honours) Global and Transnational Studies Programme, Department of Social Sciences, The Education University of Hong Kong. This is an interdisciplinary and cross-cultural programme designed to provide students with a strong understanding of the increasing interactions among globalization, environmental change, and economic, political, and social development, as well as strong skills in critical thinking, problem solving, and communication.

[Redacted] was enrolled in my course, Development: Concepts and Debates, last semester. The medium of instruction of this course was English, including the lectures and readings. The students were required to give a presentation and complete research papers in English. [Redacted] has a very good oral and written capability in English. I believe that [Redacted] is able to meet the English requirements for the exchange programme in your university.

Please feel free to contact me if you have any further questions.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

To whom it may concern,

I am writing to certify the English proficiency of [Redacted] to apply for an overseas programme of HKIED. [Redacted] high level of English proficiency was demonstrated throughout the course ENG2336 Intercultural Communication in 2016-2017. Her written assignment was shown to be well-thought, organized and presented. Her proficient spoken English and presentation skills were also proven by the class presentations and Q&A sessions.

[Redacted] is a sociable and motivated student with self-discipline and strong critical thinking skills, I have no reservation in recommending her to any overseas programme and represent HKIED. If you have further question about [Redacted], please do not hesitate to contact me at
