Leading the Way Forward

With the increased worldwide and complex social challenges, such as economic crisis and government deficit, aging society, pollution and corruption, and rapid development of technologies, the demand for trained talent in public policy and management is increasing from many sectors. Most developing countries need this talent to boost their governance capacity and policy implication capacity in their modernization process, while developed countries need to upgrade their talent in public policy and management to tackle social crisis and maintain citizens' trust and satisfaction.

The discipline of public policy and public management seeks to enhance efficiency, effectiveness and equity in society by using complex and innovative policy instruments, and employing interdisciplinary knowledge and perspective. In this context, the Master of Public Policy and Management (MPPM) Programme is designed to train students in readiness for managerial and leading roles in policy analysis and professional policy practice. Delivered by a team of distinguished specialists, the Programme provides in-service professionals, policy practitioners and future public managers and leaders with skills in policy analysis and evaluation, organisation analysis, management, strategic communications, project analysis, public governance, public sector management and development.

The MPPM Programme seeks to foster students' capabilities and skills for future manager and leader positions in professional setting, enhance their chance to hold important government positions, increase their starting salary, and make an impact on their government.

MPPM is a 24-credit-point (cps) programme, comprising 4 Core Courses (12 cps) and 4 Elective Courses (12 cps), with a total of 8 courses. Each course carries 3 cps and all the courses will be conducted in English.

Hermes PUN Kam Lam Local ——— Graduate of 2022
Project Co-ordinator II,
The Chinese University of Hong Kong

The MPPM programme broadened my understanding of public policy, enabling me to have a more thorough analysis and perception when discussing social and global issues. With the support of Mr Clement K.M. Woo, Scholarship, I got the opportunity to do internship in a community service office. In addition, the content of MPPM has helped me gain theoretical knowledge in human resource management, public resources allocation analysis, and decision-making effectiveness, which helps me meet the opportunities and challenges in my current work.

Mark Raygan E. GARCIA Filipino ——— Graduate of 2017
Governance and Engagement Manager,
English School Foundation (EFS), Hong Kong

The MPPM Programme offers world-class professors, excellent facilities and enriching co-curricular opportunities. It has helped me, with my background in communications, to broaden my skill set and better understand complex systems, structures and interrelated issues. During my time in the programme, I interned at the Academy of Hong Kong Studies at the EdUHK, and received an outbound learning fellowship which allowed me to participate in activities at the Harvard Kennedy School of Government in Boston, tour the headquarters of the World Bank in Washington DC, and explore a drug rehabilitation programme run by an NGO in Los Angeles, California. These experiences truly shaped my career path and prepared me for a transition to Hong Kong.

Nitikon JIRATHITIKANKIT Thai ——— Graduate of 2020
Director, Foreign Constitution Division
Constitutional Court of Thailand

MPPM offered me a full Entrance Scholarship, which provided a great opportunity to improve my academic and research skills, an essential criterion for my career advancement. With a wide range of courses – such as basic public policy and public administration - the knowledge I gained from MPPM has helped me to deal with many tasks. Apart from fundamental concepts and ideas, each course accompanied very insight perspectives and comparative examples from various areas of the world. MPPM is therefore very suitable for those who want to improve and broaden perspectives on public management, public administration, and public policy. I have strongly recommended this programme to my friends and colleagues who are thinking of further studies.

Yolanda WANG Shuang China ——— Graduate of 2014
China Representative,
Fashion Giant House

The Internship opportunity at Phoenix TV while I was a MPPM student was a stepping stone for me to enter the media industry. Without this opportunity it would be impossible for me to be a journalist. Additionally, the major takeaways from the programme that has helped in my career building are the critical thinking skills, problem-solving skills and looking at an issue from a global perspective. These skills have not only been useful for analysing different social issues, but also analysing different cases in the business world. I would like to take this opportunity to thank the department for their care and support and for providing us with endless opportunities.

YIN Dean Chen Jason American ——— Graduate of 2018
Senior Analyst (Health), The Economist Group
FLASS Outbound Learning Scholarship and Entrance Scholarship for Self-financed Programmes Recipient

The MPPM Programme equipped me with a robust foundation in policy analysis, research design, and evidence-based decision-making. Courses on social policy evaluation and analysis helped me develop the analytical lens needed to tackle complex cross-sectoral challenges. I was grateful for an opportunity to take on an Internship at Save the Children during my year there. Having hands-on experience outside the classroom was very helpful in settling me into the working world of Hong Kong. Being able to receive mentorship from someone outside of the university also helped deepen my collaboration with more grassroots organisations.
