In gist, the Graduate Attributes for Sub-degree, Undergraduate, Taught Postgraduate, Professional Doctorate and Research Postgraduate students consist of the following three domains (i.e. in short "PEER & I"):

The descriptors under these three domains are different for the three groups of students in order to reflect the respective level of Graduate Attributes.

The seven GILOs are:

2. Critical Thinking Skills
3. Creative Thinking Skills
- 4a. Oral Communication Skills
- 4b. Written Communication Skills
5. Social Interaction Skills
6. Ethical Decision Making

1. Course Synopsis

Qualitative research methods are designed to achieve a deeper understanding of the meanings behind experiences, situations, events, and actions as perceived by those involved, as well as the contexts in which these actions occur and how such contexts influence individuals' thinking and actions. Qualitative methods are essential for exploring the nature and complexities of the social and cultural challenges faced by societies and communities at various levels and scales. Furthermore, the direct interactions between researchers and participants make qualitative research vital for facilitating knowledge transfer activities between the university and the community. This course offers a focused introduction to qualitative research methods, addressing the nature and purposes of qualitative research methods, the integration of sociological concepts with empirical research questions, techniques for collecting and analysing qualitative data, and considerations of research quality. Assessment tasks are designed to encourage active student participation and critical reflection on qualitative research design through hands-on experiences, practical skills, and creative presentation of the research processes and results.

2. Course Intended Learning Outcomes (CILOs)

Upon completion of this course, students will be able to:

- CILO₁ Discuss the purposes for which qualitative research methods are particularly appropriate, the types of research questions that qualitative research is most suited for answering, and the nature of qualitative research design;
- CILO₂ Construct appropriate empirical qualitative research questions derived from concepts from sociology and community studies;
- CILO₃ Design and undertake the collection of qualitative data using participant observation and qualitative interviews;
- CILO₄ Analyze qualitative data;
- CILO₅ Present the results of small-scale qualitative research projects.
